

BAMS Manuscripts - Revision Checklist

Please use your manuscript number (ie BAMS-D-10-05004) in ALL correspondence. Following the guidelines below when you submit your revised paper will greatly speed production once the paper is accepted.

_____ Manuscript should include title page, abstract, capsule summary, text, footnotes, references, figure captions list, and captioned figures. All text, including any tables and appendixes, must be double-spaced. (AMS defines double-spaced as being not more than 3 typed lines per 2.5 cm.) Text should not be in less than 12-point typeface.

_____ Separate Title Page must include title, authors, each authors' affiliation, and the Corresponding Author's full contact information. Note that if the title has been changed or authors added or deleted we will need new copyright forms from ALL authors.

_____ Include 20-30 word Capsule Summary of your Article (35 maximum, no capsule required for Nowcast, InBox, Maproom, or Meeting Summary manuscripts.) The Capsule Summary will be placed underneath the title and authors of your article. It will be used as a "lead in" to the content of your paper. The more detailed Abstract will be placed on a separate page in the Table of Contents. Check any recent BAMS issue to see this layout.

_____ References and citations must be in proper style. Detailed directions can be found at http://www.ametsoc.org/pubs/journals/author_reference_guide.pdf Here's an example of a reference for a journal article:

last name, first initials, year: article title. journal title (italic), vol. # (bold), article page range.
Cohen, J., and K. Saito, 2002: A test for annular modes. J. Climate, 15, 2537-2546.

_____ Appendixes and sidebars (if included), reference list, and figure captions list should each begin a new page; figures should be placed one per page with captions repeated below the figure for ease of review. Tables should also be one per page, with captions above table text. (No list of table captions is necessary)

_____ Please ensure that your revised manuscript is ready for immediate processing should it be accepted – review it carefully for typos and any other minor errors. If your revision is accepted, your manuscript source file will go into production very quickly afterwards - making post-acceptance changes adds time and expense to processing. In addition, the final accepted version of your paper will be posted to the AMS Early Online Release web site about 10 days after acceptance – please be sure that the revision you upload is of the quality you want to appear on the Early Online Release site.

_____ Upload the revised manuscript and figures at the BAMS Editorial Manager Upload page: <http://www.editorialmanager.com/bams/default.asp> . For final production we need the manuscript file in Word or other original native format and also the figures prepared in tif or eps format. Providing the final figure files with your revision will speed production time. See below for instructions on uploading figures. NOTE that BAMS cannot process Tex or LaTeX files, they will need to be rekeyed by hand, slowing production considerably; please provide Word, Wordperfect or some rtf format. Please upload a detailed response to reviewers document; you may upload a cover letter to the editor if desired.

_____ For final publication BAMS requires individual figure files in eps or tif format, but for review we need to provide captioned figures. You may choose either to add captions to the bottom of your tif or eps figures and render them into the pdf for review, or to provide captioned figures in another format, either at the end of the text document or as a separate file or files. Upload the captioned files as “Figures” if they are separate from the text document. The tif or eps formatted figures to be used for final production should be uploaded as “Non-Rendered Figures” if you are providing captioned figures in another format. Color images should be saved in CMYK mode, not RGB. The RGB color image can be converted to CMYK, but there will be a compression of the color range. To ensure usability of your files, please try to achieve a resolution of 300 dpi for grayscale and color figures and 1200 dpi for line drawings. Please also note: figure files should be one complete figure per file (with all panels of any multi-panel figures to appear on the same page in the same file) otherwise you will be charged for figure mounting.

AMS “Early Online Release” web site

The final accepted pdf file of your manuscript will be made available at the Early Online Release web site hosted by Allen Press (AMS’s online journals host) The pdf will be posted to the site about ten days after your paper is transmitted by your Editor to the AMS Publications Department for publication.

If you do not want your full manuscript made available before copyediting and other processing is done, you will be able to opt out by notifying AMS after your paper has been accepted. If you opt out, your full manuscript will not be made available, but the title, abstract, corresponding author info, and full list of authors will be posted.
